The COVID-19 pandemic has dominated the headlines over the past year, and rightly so. Upwards of a million people have died from the disease worldwide — more than 220,000 in the United States alone. Health experts are warning that the situation will turn even more dire as winter approaches, and already we are witnessing a spike in infections in Europe and the United States.

On top of that, in the shadow of this global health crisis, many other worrying trends continue to emerge. A combination of the pandemic, a decrease in societal interaction, and a distracted international press have served to dampen or stall international conflicts and acts of terror around the world. So what happens when the pandemic ends?

We invite you to join us for our next webinar, "Global Affairs Beyond COVID-19: What's Ahead in 2021" on Wednesday, December 2 at 11:00 AM with the Global Guardian team. Dale Buckner, Global Guardian CEO, Michael Ballard, Director of Intel, and Mike McGarrity, Vice President of Global Risk Services, will join the GBTA team to discuss the year ahead, taking into account the looming global affairs and continued pandemic when it comes to business travel, returning to work, and more.

Presenters:
